MEMORIALS
OF
GEORGE BANNATYNE.

MEMOIR OF GEORGE BANNATYNE.

THE pious care with which some of our associates have searched out every particular which Time has spared respecting the honoured Patron under whose name our Institution is formed, has been materially aided by the discovery of George Bannatyne's "Memoriall Buik," in the possession of his descendant, Sir James Foulis of Woodhall, Baronet, who has obligingly lent it for that purpose. The result of the enquiry does not indeed throw much light on his personal character, or the incidents of his life, but yet conveys to the Members of the Bannatyne Club some information which cannot but be acceptable. It is interesting to learn, that the indefatigable preserver of Scottish literature was by birth, education, and fortune, above the middling class of society; and still of greater consequence to know, that in an age of inveterate feuds and bloody violence, the outrages of the time did not reach the lover of the Muses, by whose unwearied exertions so much of the ancient Scottish poetry has been preserved from oblivion.

The father of our Patron was James Bannatyne of the Kirktown of Newtyld, near the village of Meigle, in Angus-shire. He was a burgess and writer in Edinburgh, and was probably the person alluded to by Robert Semple,—

For men of law, I wait not quhair to luke :
James Bannatyne was anis a man of skill.¹

Of the descent of this James, we know nothing with certainty ; but it has been ascertained by our venerable associate Sir William MacLeod Bannatyne, chief of the name, that he was connected with the ancient family of the Bennauchtyne, more recently spelled Bannatyne, of Camys, in the Isle of Bute.² The name was sometimes spelled Ballenden and Ballantyne.

James Bannatyne of New Tyld had a numerous family by his wife, Katherine Tailliefer. She is recorded by her son to have been “ a woman of godly conversation, with whom her husband led a godly, christian, and pleasant life.” Their children were twenty-three in number. Had each, or any considerable number of this large family been gifted with a moderate share of the taste and perseverance of our Patron George, the literature of Scotland would have been in a state of preservation which might have been the envy of Europe. But the taste and patience which selected and executed the Bannatyne Manuscripts could only be indulged to one individual. The number of persons of condition whose names occur as god-fathers and god-mothers to the numerous family of our Patron’s father, attest the respectability of the parents. We may distinguish the respectable names of Mr James MacGill, Clerk Register, Fowlis of Collington, with a branch of which family George Bannatyne was afterwards connected, the relict of Henderson of Fordel, the spouse of Sir Niel Layng, Symon Preston, and other names belonging to the landed gentry. It is perhaps scarce worth while to notice, that Patrick Hepburne of Wauchton, a confident of the too well known Earl of Bothwell,³ was in the bonds of spiritual kindred with the family of our George Bannatyne, being godfather to his brother Patrick.

George Bannatyne himself, the seventh child of his parents, was born on the 22d day of February, 1545 years. His godfathers were George Tailliefer, his maternal uncle, and William Fischear, his cousin; his godmother Mawise Fischear. He was bred up to trade, but does not appear to have been engaged in business in his own behalf early in life. Reverting to the death of his mother at the age of fifty-seven years, he adds, that she left alive behind her eleven children, of whom eight were still under the paternal roof, and did not possess any independent means of livelihood.

To this seclusion from active life during his youth we owe the possession of that rich collection of Scottish Poetry which forms our Patron's title to our respect. We will speak of it more at large ³ Francis and Mary, Mar. 23, 1558, Confirm a Charter of Sale by Patrick,* Bishop of Moray, Commendator of the Monastery of Scone, (Augustine order,) in favour of JAMES BANNATYNE, Burgess of Edinburgh, and Katherine Tailliefeier his spouse in conjunct fee, and the heirs of their bodies, whom failing, to the heirs whomsoever, and the assignees of the said James, of the lands of Balquhomerye and Formonthills, in the barony of Leslie and shire of Fife. hereafter ; in the meantime it is sufficient to say, that it was compiled and transcribed in the year 1568, and must have been a labour of love to the collector, since he pursued it with an earnest zeal which seems almost miraculous. The volume, written in a very close hand, and containing near eight hundred pages, appears to have occupied the transcriber only three months, an assertion which we should have scrupled to receive upon any other authority than his own.

In 1572, George Bannatyne was provided in a tenement in the town of Leith by a gift from his father. He was then twenty-seven years, and probably about to enter on business on his own account. But it was not until the 27th October, 1587, that, being then in his thirty-third year, he was admitted in due and competent form to the privileges of a merchant and guild-brother in the city of Edinburgh.

We have no means of knowing what branch of traffic George Bannatyne chiefly exercised ; it is probable that, as usual in a Scottish burgh, his commerce was general and miscellaneous. We have reason to know that it was successful, as we find him in a few years possessed of a considerable capital, the time being considered, which he employed to advantage in various money-lending transactions. It must not be forgot that the penal laws of the Catholic period pronounced all direct taking of interest upon money, to be usurious and illegal. These denunciations did not decrease the desire of the wealthy to derive some profit from their capital, or diminish the necessity of the embarrassed land-holder who wished to borrow money. The mutual interest of the parties suggested various evasions of the law, of which the most common was, that the capitalist advanced to his debtor the sum wanted, as the price of a corresponding annuity, payable out of the lands and tenements of the debtor, which annuity was declared redeemable upon the said debtor repaying the sum advanced. The moneyed men of those days, therefore, imitated the conduct imputed to the Jewish patriarch by Shylock. They did not take — interest—not as you would say

Directly interest,

but they retained payment of an annuity as long as the debtor retained the use of their capital, which came much to the same thing. A species of transaction introduced for the purpose of evading the laws against usury was continued, as affording a convenient mode of securing the lender's money.

Our researches have discovered that Mr George Bannatynè had sufficient funds to enter into various transactions of this kind, in the capacity of lender ; and as we have no reason to suppose that he profited unfairly by the necessities of the other party, he cannot be blamed for having recourse to the ordinary expedients, to avoid the penalties of an absurd law, and accomplish a fair transaction dictated by mutual expediency.

We do not find the exact date of George Bannatynè's marriage, but it may have taken place about 1587, the term of his entering the community of guild-brothers. His spouse was Isobel Mawchan, relict of Bailie William Nisbett, whom he has celebrated as a "godly, honest, wise, virtuous, and true matron." Of her beauty he says nothing, either because there was no room for speaking of such vanities, or because they would rank ill among the moral attributes with which his sober prose has invested her. If the worthy relict of Bailie William Nisbett was the lady of his love when, "in the time of his youth," he collected the works of the learned Makers of his day, and added to them his own effusions, our patriarch had made up beforehand the omissions of graver eulogium, by telling us, that as the pale moon to the bright eye of day,

My lady so in beauty dois abound,
Above all other ladeis on the ground.

The earliest mention of their family is the birth of a daughter, Janet Bannatyne, born on the third of May, 1587, who survived her parents; a son, born sixth September, 1589, named James, died in childhood. From these circumstances, it may perhaps be inferred, that George Bannatyne's marriage took place about 1586.

It is certain that the subject of this imperfect Memoir, on the first January, in the year of God 1583, lost his father, James Bannatyne, of the Kirktown of Newtyld, at the age of seventy-one years, leaving behind him, in life, six sons and three daughters, all well and sufficiently provided by him, under God. "He was a man honourable, wise, and of an upright conscience," so proceeds the pious memorial of his son; "of all men well beloved, and to no man hurtful or wrongeous, and ended his life by praising God with a penitent heart, and an assured hope of his mercy, through Christ." He was succeeded in his estate of New Tyle by his eldest living son, Thomas, who became one of the Lords of Session by that designation, an appointment which forms an additional voucher for the general respectability of the family.

In 1591, the aforesaid Master Thomas Bannatyne Lord New Tyle, brother of George, and one of the Lords of the College of Justice, died, at the age of fifty-one years, leaving a numerous family. In 1597 he was followed by James Bannatyne, another of George's brothers, who pursued his father's profession of a writer. The same record of mortality announces, that on the 29th January, 1597, our compiler lost his only son, James Bannatyne, a boy of between eight and nine years old; and that on the 27th of August, 1603, he was deprived of his affectionate helpmate, Isobel Mawchan, at the age of fifty-seven. Her death is affectionately recorded by her husband. "She lived," says his memorandum, "a godly, honourable, and virtuous life, all her days; was a wise, honest, and true matron, and departed in the Lord in a peaceful and godly manner."

The remaining stay of our compiler's old age was his daughter, and only surviving child, Jonet or Janet Bannatyne. This young lady was married, on the 1st of June, 1603, to George Foulis of Woodhall and Ravelstone, second son of James Foulis of Colingtoun. It appears that, after his wife's death, George Bannatyne resided in family with his daughter. He mentions in his Memoranda, that in 1606 he was dwelling with his son-in-law and daughter in Dreg-horn, near Colingtoun, when a nurse in the family caught the pestilence which was then raging. She died on the 26th day of August in that year after two days' illness. But this alarming visitation made no farther progress, for which our author devoutly expresses the gratitude due to Heaven. George Bannatyne was at this time sixty-one years old; how much longer he continued to live we have not found means to ascertain, nor do we know by what summons he was finally removed from the scene.⁴ But we have no reason to doubt that the end of his life corresponded with its tenor, and that his death was peaceful and timely.

This string of dates is all we have to record of our Patron's life.⁵ But it is proper to take some notice of the work to which he owes his celebrity, and for which we acknowledge our gratitude to his memory.

It is seldom that the toils of the amanuensis are in themselves interesting, or that even while enjoying the advantages of the poor scribe's labour, we are disposed to allow him the merit of more than mere mechanical drudgery. But in the compilation of George Bannatyne's Manuscript there are particulars which rivet our attention on the writer, and raise him from an humble copyist into a national benefactor.

Bannatyne's Manuscript is in a folio form, containing upwards of eight hundred pages, very neatly and closely written, and designed, as has been supposed, to be sent to the press. The labour of compiling so rich a collection was undertaken by the author during the time of pestilence in the year 1568,⁶ when the dread of infection compelled men to forsake their usual employments, which could not be conducted without admitting the ordinary promiscuous intercourse between man and his kindred men.

⁴ That George Bannatyne deceased previous to December 1608, appears from the Testament dative ad omissa of his spouse Isobell Mawchan, printed in the Appendix, No. II.

⁵ Our knowledge of these dates is chiefly derived from "The Tymes of the Nativities," &c. contained in the Extracts from Bannatyne's "Memoriall Buik" which follow this Memoir.

In this dreadful period, when hundreds, finding themselves surrounded by danger and death, renounced all care save that of selfish precautions for their safety, and all thoughts save apprehensions of infection, George Bannatyne had the courageous energy to form and execute the plan of saving the literature of a whole nation; and, undisturbed by the universal mourning for the dead, and general fears of the living, to devote himself to the task of collecting and recording the triumphs of human genius;—thus, amid the wreck of all that was mortal, employing himself in preserving the lays by which immortality is at once given to others, and obtained for the writer himself. His task, he informs us, had its difficulties; for he complains that he had, even in his time, to contend with the disadvantage of copies old, maimed, and mutilated, and which long before our day must, but for this faithful transcriber, have perished entirely. The very labour of procuring the originals of the works which he transcribed must have been attended with much trouble and some risk, at a time when all the usual intercourse of life was suspended, and when we can conceive that even so simple a circumstance as the borrowing or lending a book of ballads, was accompanied with some doubt and apprehension, and that probably the suspected volume was subjected to fumigation, and the precautions practised in quarantine.

As therefore, from the contents of the work in general, we may conclude our Patron to have been both a good judge and an energetic admirer of literature, we will not perhaps be too fanciful in deeming him a man of calm courage and undaunted perseverance, since he could achieve so heavy a labour at so inauspicious a period.

In endeavouring to form an estimate of his character, we naturally look to his literary efforts. That which we love we usually strive to imitate ; and we are not surprised to find that George Bannatyne, the preserver of so many valuable poems, was himself acquainted with the art of poetry. Amid the various examples which he has compiled of the talents of others, he has obliged the reader with two poems of his own. They are ballads “ tuned to his mistress’s eyebrow ;” but even we, his children, cannot claim for them a high rank amongst the productions of the Scottish Muse, for the power of loving and admiring with discrimination the poetry of others, is very far from implying the higher faculties necessary to produce it. The reader will, however, find these two specimens of our father George’s amatory poetry in the Appendix, No. IV ; and may probably be of opinion, that our Patron showed himself merciful in the sparing and moderate example which they afford of his poetical powers. The verses are a string of extravagant conceits, setting forth his lady’s beauties and his own despair in a tone of frigid extravagance, which must have astonished Isobel Mawchan, if to her they were addressed. We are somewhat startled to hear that the lady’s locks altogether resembled a bush burning in red flames, but without smoke ; and scarce less so at finding our Patriarch demanding for himself as dead, an instant and hasty funeral, “ because Actæon had been slain by his own fell dogs ;” since the position that George Bannatyne should be forthwith buried, because Actæon was dead, seems to approach to what the learned Partridge calls a non sequitur. Actæon, we suppose, brought Adonis into our Patron's head, for we find him next remonstrating with the boar for not slaying him, and calling as loudly for death as he had done for burial in the preceding stanza.

Oh, thundering Boar, in thy most awful rage,
Why wilt thou not me with thy tusks rive?

But our Members will probably themselves apprehend an invasion of the thundering Boar, if we proceed any farther in this subject. Our respect is not paid to George Bannatyne as a poet, but as a friend and lover of poetry, and one to whom the Scottish Muses are eternally indebted, whether we consider his industry, or the taste by which it was directed.

In the reign of James IV. and V. the fine arts, as they awakened in other countries, made some progress in Scotland also. Architecture and music were encouraged by both those accomplished sovereigns; and poetry, above all, seems to have been highly valued at the Scottish court. The King of Scotland, who, in point of power, seems to have been little more than the first baron of his kingdom, held a free and merry court, in which poetry and satire seem to have had unlimited range, even where their shafts glanced on royalty itself. The consequence of this general encouragement was the production of much poetry of various kinds, and concerning various persons, which the narrow exertions of the Scottish press could not convey to the public, or which, if printed at all, existed only in limited editions, which soon sunk to the rarity of manuscripts.

There was, therefore, an ample mine out of which Bannatyne made his compilation, with the intent, doubtless, of putting the Lays of the Makers out of the reach of oblivion, by subjecting the collection to the press. But the bloody wars of Queen Mary's time made that no period for literary adventure ; and the tendency of the subsequent age to polemical discussion discouraged lighter and gayer studies. There is, therefore, little doubt, that had Bannatyne lived later than he did, or had he been a man of less taste in selecting his materials, a great proportion of the poetry contained in his volume must have been lost to posterity ; and if the stock of northern literature had been diminished only by the loss of such of Dunbar's pieces as Bannatyne's Manuscript contains, the damage to posterity would have been infinite.

This darling of the Scottish Muses has been justly raised to a level with Chaucer by every judge of poetry, to whom his obsolete language has not rendered him unintelligible. In brilliancy of fancy, in force of description, in the power of conveying moral precepts with terseness, and marking lessons of life with conciseness and energy, in quickness of satire, and in poignancy of humour, the Northern Maker may boldly aspire to rival the Bard of Woodstock. In the pathetic, Dunbar is Chaucer's inferior, and accordingly in most of his pieces he rather wishes to instruct the understanding, or to amuse the fancy, than to affect the heart. It is with pleasure we understand that an edition of the excellent poet, unrivalled by any which Scotland ever produced, is soon to appear under the auspices of our Secretary. We shall then be in possession of what a correct text can give. But where is the Dryden to be found, who is to translate, for the benefit of more modern times, the wisdom, the wit, the humour, which can now only be comprehended by the scholar and antiquary ?

But although Dunbar be in himself a host, it is not for his pieces only that we are called to thank our Patron. The beautiful pastoral of Robin and Makyne, the works of Lyndesay, Scott, Henryson, and other poets of the sixteenth century, have been also preserved by the care of George Bannatyne, who, if he had merely acted under the impatience arising from want of employment, would perhaps have gone no farther for subjects of transcription than the "drafty rhimings," which gave so much displeasure to honest Harry Bailly, mine Host of the Tabard. But he aspired at collecting and preserving that which was really worthy of preservation, and his Manuscript must be considered as comprehending a copious selection of the best Scottish poetry. The Manuscript, therefore, which bears his name, eminently deserving of our veneration as a monument of ancient times, a record of early literature and of ancient manners, is yet more worthy of respect, from the genius and talent displayed by most of the authors whose works Bannatyne has transcribed and preserved. There is yet another point of view in which the collection may be regarded. Independent of the intrinsic merit of the poems collected in Bannatyne's manuscript, the insight which they afford respecting the manners of Scotland at that early period, is as valuable to the historian and antiquary, as their poetical merit renders them acceptable to readers of taste and judgment.

At the beginning of the Manuscript is the following Address by Bannatyne, detailing the general nature of the contents of the five parts or divisions under which the poems are classed :

THE WRYITTAR TO THE REIDARIS.

YE reverend Redaris, thir workis revolving richt,
 Gif ye get crymes, correct thame to your micht,
 And curse na Clark that cunninggly thame wrait,
 But blame me baldly brocht this buik till licht
 In tenderest tyme, quhen knowlege was nocht bricht,
 But lait begun to lerne, and till translait
 My copeis awld, mankit and mutillait,
 Quhais trewth as standis, (yit haif I, sympill wicht,)
 Tryd furth, Thairfoir excuse sum pairt my estait.

Now ye haif heir this ilk buik sa provydit,
 That in fyve pairtis It is dewly devydit :

1. The first concernis Godis gloir and our saluatioun ;
2. The nixt are morale, grave, and als besyd it,
3. Grund on gude counsale ; The third, I will nocht hyd it,
 Ar blyith and glaid, maid for our consollatioun ;
4. The ferd of luvè and thair richt reformatioun ;
5. The fyift ar tailis and storeis weill discydit :—
 Reid as ye pleiss, I neid no moir narratioun.

After the introductory verses is the following title—

“ Ane most Godlie, mirrie, and lustie Rapsodie, maide be sundrie learned Scots poets, and written be George Bannatyne, in the tyme of his youth.”

The First part, “ contenand ballatis of theologie,” extends to folio 43.—“ Followis the Secound pairt of the buk, conteneand verry singular ballatis, full of wisdomè and moralitie,” etc.—At folio 97 ends the Second part, and “ Heir begynnys the Third pairt of this buik, contenand balletis mirry, and vther solatius consaittis, set furth be diuers ancient Poyettis. 1568." These "mirry and solatius consaits," include Christ's Kirk on the Grene, The Wyfe of Auchtermuchty, The Flyting of Dunbar and Kennedy, and many other pieces of broad humour, made, as Bannatyne expresses it, "for our consolation." The most conspicuous place, however, in this division, is occupied with Sir David Lyndsay's well-known Play, "The Satyre of the Three Estates;" from which, on account of "the long process of the play," Bannatyne contented himself with transcribing detached portions, in the form of "certane mirry Interludes thairof, very plesand, levand the grave mater thairof, becaus the samyne abuse is weill reformit in Scotland, praysit be God!"

These 'mirry' Interludes extend to folio 210; and, on the next leaf, "Heir followis Ballatis of Luve, devydit in four partis. The first, Sangis of Luve. The second are contemptis of Luve and evill wemen. The third ar contemptis of evill fals vicius men. And the fourt ar ballatis detesting of luve and lichery."—Bannatyne commences this Fourth part with the following appropriate address:

To the Redar.

Heir haif ye, Luvaris, ballattis at your will,
How evir your natur directtit is untill.
Bot, wald ye luve eftir my counsalling,
Luve first your God aboif all uder thing;
Nixt, as your self your nichtbur beir gud will.

Among these "Ballattis of Luve," for the preservation of which we are indebted to our Patron, we may notice the love verses of Alexander Scott, who has been styled "the Scottish Anacreon."

On proceeding to folio 298, we read, "Here follouis the Fyift part of this buik, contenyng the ffabillis of Esop, with diuers uthir fabillis and poetickall workis, maid and compyld be diuers lernit men. 1568.—This part of the manuscript is likewise introduced by an address from the compiler “To the Redar.”

My freindis, thir storeis subseqent,
 Albeid bot Fabillis thay present,
 Yit devyne Doctowris of jugement
 Sayis, thair ar hid bot dowt,
 Graue meteris wyis and sapient,
 Vndir the workis of Poyetis gent ;
 Thairfoir, be war that thow consent
 To blame thir, heir set owt !

The chief poems contained in this division are several of Henryson’s fables, with his exquisite pastoral of Robin and Makyne ; the ancient allegorical poem of the Howlat ; the Freirs of Berwick ; Dunbar’s Goldin Targe, and his Thrissill and the Rois ; together with the singular rhapsody of Colkelbie’s Sow. On the last leaf (folio 375) is inserted this valedictory address :

The Writtar to the Redare.

Heir endis this Buik, writtin in tyme of pest,
 Quhen we fra labor was compeld to rest,
 In to the thré last monethis of this yeir,
 Frome oure Redimaris birth, to knaw it heir,
 Ane thowsand is, ffyve hundreth, thréscoir awcht.
 Off this purpoiss na mair it neiddis be tawcht.
 Swa, till conclude, God grant ws all gude end ;
 And eftir deth Eternal lyfe ws send.—ffinis. 1568.

Any farther notice of the contents of Bannatyne’s Manuscript is rendered unnecessary, by the detailed list which forms part of this publication, exhibiting the titles and first lines of all the poems contained in the manuscript, with references to the works in which they have been severally printed.

After the death of George Bannatyne, the industrious compiler, this Manuscript became the property of his grandson, George Foulis, of Ravelston. His daughter, Jonet Bannatyne, died on the 31st of March, 1631, and her husband, George Foulis of Ravelston,⁷ (who was Master of the King's Mint,) on the 28th May, 1633. They lie buried on the west side of the Grey Friars Churchyard, where a very handsome tomb was erected to their memory. The emblematical figures which adorn this monument, for the purpose of attesting the wealth and respectability of our Patron's descendants, have been much mutilated; but the centre part, as represented in the accompanying engraving, is better preserved, and highly creditable to the state of the arts at that period; and it is the more interesting, as containing portraits of George Foulis and Jonet Bannatyne.⁸

⁷ The old house of Ravelston was built about the year 1622, and is ornamented in various parts of the building with the ciphers of George Foulis and Jonet Bannatyne intertwined, and the ceiling of the principal room is painted with considerable elegance. A view of the house, from a sketch by James Skene, Esq. is given as a vignette, at the end of this Memoir. From the prominent manner in which Jonet's name is uniformly exhibited in conjunction with her husband's, we may infer, that as an heiress, she had inherited considerable wealth from her father, George Bannatyne.

⁸ The inscription is become illegible: Monteith, however, in his "Theater of Mortality," copied it more than a century ago, and we insert it from his curious work:—

"MEMORLÆ SACRUM

"VIRI optimi GEORGII FOULIS, à Ravilstoun, ex Nobili familia Colintonia, Rei monetariæ Regiæ Magistri, Civitatis Edinburgenæ Prætoris, ac per annos 16. Senatoris; Qui, in omni munere publico privatoque egregia fide et integritate; in florentis familiæ splendore et fortunæ amplitudine; eximia animi modestia; bonis omnibus

It only remains to observe, that on the 20th of November, 1712, William Foulis of Woodhall (the great-grandson of George Bannatyne,⁹) bestowed this Manuscript, the monument of his ancestor's taste and labours, upon the Honourable Mr. William Carmichael of Skirling, advocate. Finally, in the year 1772, the liberality of John third Earl of Hyndford made this Corpus Poëtarum Scotorum public property, by depositing it in the Library of the Faculty of Advocates.

Such is all we have been able to learn of George Bannatyne, and such the general history of the compilation which he formed. It is a lesson to the Society of persons who have used his Name as a rallying word to mark their attachment to Scottish literature, charus ; nemini etiam improbo invisus ; ad maturam usque senectutem proventus, honestam vitam, pia morte, fœliciter clausit, 28 Maij 1633, ætatis 64.

“Mortalitatis exuvias, in novæ vitæ spem, hic deposuit, una cum charissima Conjuge JONETA BANNATINA ; cum qua 29. annos vixit, in summa concordia.

“Reliquit filios superstites 6, totidemque filias ; præmortuos 5. filios et filiam, in regnum cœleste, ante ambulones habuit.”—[Theater of Mortality, 1704, 8vo, p. 32, and reprinted in Maitland's History of Edinburgh, folio, p. 197.]

for it serves to show how much the patience and energy of one individual, directed by taste and good sense, was able to achieve for the preservation of the poetry of a nation within the limited space of three months.

Besides affording assistance to almost every antiquary who has written upon the ancient history of Scotland, "Bannatyne's Manuscript" has afforded exclusively materials for the collection by Allan Ramsay, called the Evergreen, in two little volumes, printed in the year 1724, and for a selection of ancient Scottish poetry, subsequently published by Sir David Dalrymple, Lord Hailes.

Ramsay has left traces of his labours by some lines written at the end of the Manuscript itself.¹⁰ In his preface, he praises with truth and spirit the works of the ancient Masters, to whom he had become Editor. "I have observed," he says, "that readers of the best and most exquisite discernment frequently complain of our modern writings, as filled with affected delicacies and studied refinements, which they would gladly exchange for that natural strength of thought and simplicity of stile our forefathers prac-

¹⁰ These lines, dated July 6, 1726, are as follows:—"On the EVER GREEN's being gathered out of this Manuscript by Allan Ramsay, who had the loan of it from the Honourable Mr William Carmichaell, advocat, brother-german to the Earl of Hynford,"—

In Seventeen hundred, twenty-four,
did ALLAN RAMSAY keen-
-ly gather from this Book that store,
which fills his EVER GREEN.

Thrice fifty and sax Towmonds neat frae when it was collected;
Let worthy Poets hope good fate,
thro' Time they'll be respected.

Fashions of words and witt may change,
and rob in part their fame,
And make them to dull fops look strange,
but sence is still the same.

And will bleez bright to that clear mind
that loves the antient strains,
Like good CARMICHAEL, Patron kind

“ tised ; to such, I hope, the following Collection of Poems will not “ be displeasing.

“ When these good old Bards wrote, we had not yet made use of “ imported trimming upon our cloaths, nor of foreign embroidery
 “ in our writings. Their Poetry is the product of their own Coun“ try, not pilfered and spoiled in the transportation from abroad :
 “ their images are native, and their landskips domestick ; copied
 “ from those fields and meadows we every day behold. The morn“ ing rises (in the Poet’s description) as she does in the Scottish ho“ rizon. We are not carried to Greece or Italy for a shade, a stream,
 “ or a breeze. The groves rise in our own valleys ; the rivers flow
 “ from our own fountains, and the winds blow upon our own hills.
 “ I find not fault with those things, as they are in Greece or Italy :
 “ but with a Northern Poet for fetching his materials from these “ places, in a poem, of which his own country is the scene ; as our “ Hymners to the Spring and Makers of Pastorals frequently do.

“ This Miscellany will likewise recommend itself, by the diver“ sity of subjects and humour it contains. The grave description
 “ and the wanton story, the moral saying and the mirthful jest,
 “ will illustrate and alternately relieve each other.

“ The Reader, whose temper is spleen’d with the vices and fol“ lies now in fashion, may gratifie his humour with the satyres he “ will find upon the follies and vices that were uppermost two or “ three hundred years ago. The Man, whose inclinations are turn“ ed to mirth, will be pleased to know how the good Fellow of a “ former age told his jovial tale ; and the Lover may divert him“ self with the old-fashioned Sonnet of an amorous Poet in Q. Mar“ garet and Q. Mary’s days. In a word, the following Collection “ will be such another prospect to the eye of the mind, as to the “ outward eye is the various meadow, where flowers of different

“ hue and smell are mingled together in a beautiful irregularity.”—
This passage contains a deserved, and not an inelegant compliment, both to the merit of the ancient poets and the taste of George Bannatyne, who selected and arranged their compositions.

In point of editorial accuracy, Ramsay took greater license than would be now admitted. He never scrupled altering the text where he thought he could make an improvement, and very frequently he was of that opinion when it was a very mistaken one. This, however, was not the fault of honest Allan, who, as observed by Lord Hailes, was certainly a man of singular natural genius, although incompetent to editing a collection of ancient Scottish Poems, for want of the antiquarian lore essential to such a task. He had announced his intention to publish two additional volumes of the Evergreen, with lives and characters of the different Scottish poets, but the success attending his first publication was probably not sufficient to encourage him to proceed in completing the design.

The publication of Lord Hailes, is entitled “ Ancient Scottish Poems, published from the Manuscript of George Bannatyne. 1568. Edinburgh, 1770,” 12mo. It was designed to correct the many infidelities and inaccuracies of the Evergreen, and is accompanied with notes and a glossary, valuable as coming from the pen of so celebrated an antiquary. Yet aliquando dormitat—Lord Hailes, himself the most accurate of men, after spelling the name of our patron correctly in the title page, calls him in the first page of his preface “one Ballantine.” Had he discovered this misnomer in the work while in the bookseller’s hands, he would certainly have cancelled the preface. The publication is an excellent specimen of Bannatyne’s Collection, though the severe delicacy of Lord Hailes’s taste has excluded some curious matter.

Here, therefore, must end our brief account of our Patron, Bannatyne, his Manuscript, and the use which has been made of it. Let us conclude with the classical wish—

AN ACCOUNT OF THE CONTENTS
GEORGE BANNATYNE'S MANUSCRIPT.

THE Manuscript Collection of Poems, written by George Bannatyne in the year 1568, is, as stated in the preceding Memoir, a folio volume,¹ containing upwards of 800 pages. That it was compiled and written at one or nearly the same period, is evident from a careful examination, although a few short poems, which belong to the end of the 16th, or early part of the 17th century, have been inserted on some blank leaves of the volume. These interpolations are pointed out in the following list of contents.

The care bestowed by Bannatyne in making so extensive a collection of the remains of our early Makers, and his occasional addresses to the reader, seem to denote that it was intended for publication. We cannot, however, claim for him the merit of being the only or even the earliest collector ; and it is worthy of remark, that Sir Richard Maitland of Lethington, when advanced age had rendered him incapable of taking any active part in public affairs, should have amused himself about the same time in a similar occupation; and indeed the task of collecting our popular literature may have been attempted by other individuals, although the result of their labours has been less fortunate.

The earliest known collection of miscellaneous Scottish poetry worthy of notice, is a volume, in the Auchinleck Library, written by JOHN ASLOAN about the year 1515; but, unfortunately, only a portion of the original volume has been preserved. In this portion, however, we find ‘the Buke of the Chess,’ Henryson’s ‘Orpheus and Eurydice,’ ‘the Buke of the Howlat’ by Holland, ‘the Buke of the Sevin Sages,’ and a fragment of ‘the Preistis of Peblis,’ besides some prose writings, including the valuable contemporary Chronicle of the reign of James II. of Scotland. From a table of contents at the beginning of the volume, it appears originally to have consisted of 71 articles, 36 of which have been preserved, but partially mutilated. Among the articles in the portion which is lost, were the Bukes ‘of Ralf Coilzear,’ ‘of Sir Golagrus, and Sir Gawane,’ and ‘of Colkelby;’ with ‘Mr Robert Hendersone’s Doune on fut by Forth,’ and his ‘Fablis of Esope;’ ‘the Buke of Curtasy and of Nurtur,’ ‘the Document of Sir Gilbert Hay;’ and various other interesting ‘bukes’ and ‘ballatis.’

The Manuscript of Sir Richard Maitland is confessedly one of great importance, without admitting with Pinkerton that it is “the chief treasure of ancient Scottish poetry;” and it is matter of regret that it should not have been deposited in a place easier of access for literary purposes than the Pepysian Library, in Magdalene College, Cambridge. The Manuscript is a small folio of 366 pages, and contains 176 articles, enumerated by Mr Pinkerton in his two volumes of Ancient Scottish Poetry, selected from that Manuscript² in the year 1786. A very considerable number of the poems (about one-third) are common to both collections; those of most value, peculiar to the Cambridge Manuscript, being 'Peblis to the Play;' 'King Hart,' by Bishop Douglas; Dunbar's Tale of the 'Twa Married Women and the Wedow;' 'The Murning Maiden;' and the original Poems by the venerable Collector himself, which are included in the publication referred to.

Another Manuscript which may be here noticed is one less known, and of less extent, in consequence of many leaves having been torn out of the middle of the volume. It is deposited with Bishop More's MSS. in the University Library, Cambridge, and was written by one John Ridpath, in the year 1623; and is chiefly valuable, as containing several poems by Dunbar, not elsewhere preserved; but in other respects it might be considered as a transcript of part of Sir Richard Maitland's Manuscript.

As "Mr Dunbar," and several other of our old poets, are under great obligations to Allan Ramsay, who was the first to recommend them to public notice, we shall here insert some lines by him, which are not included in any edition of his works. They were intended to have been prefixed to the Evergreen, and are worthy of preservation, not so much in regard to any merit which they possess, ² Appendix, p. 437-467.—There is also a 4to MS. dated 1585, in the handwriting of Mary Maitland, daughter of Sir Richard. It consists of 96 pieces, chiefly transcripts from the folio MS. of Sir R. Maitland's own poems and of others by contemporary poets, during the latter half of the 16th century.

HEIR mighty JAMES the First, the best of Kings,
 Imploys the merry Muse, and smyling sings.
 Grave BALANTYNE, in verse divinely wyse,
 Makis Vertew triumph owre fals fleechand Vyse.

And heir DUNBAR does with unbound ingyne,
 In satyre, joke, and in the serious schyne.
 He to best poets skairslie zields in ocht ;
 In language he may fail, but not in thocht.

Blyth KENNEDIE, contesting for the bays,
 Attackis his freind DUNBAR in comick layis,
 And seims the fittest hand (of ony then)
 Against sae fell a fae to draw his pen.

Heir LETHINGTON the Statisman courts the Nyne,
 Draps politicks a quhyle, and turns divyne ;
 Sings the Creation, and fair Eden tint,
 And promise made to man, man durst not hint.

To rouse couragious fyre behald the field,
 Quhair Hardyknute, with lanns, bow, sword and scheild,
 With his braif Sonis, dantit the King of Norss,
 And cleithed the plain with mony a saules cors.
 At Harlaw and Redsqwire, the sonis may leir,
 How thair forbeirs were unacquaint with feir.

 Frae antique manuscriptis, with utmost cair.
 Thus to their fame, a monument we raise,
 Quhilk sall endure quhyle Tymis telld out be days.

In the following list of the contents of the Manuscript, the first line of every poem is printed in Italic letters ; the titles, the number of stanzas and lines, and the names of authors when they occur, are carefully specified, and references given to works in which they have been printed.

⁴ Ramsay announced his intention to publish a third and fourth volume of the Evergreen.

The following abbreviations are used for the works to which most frequent reference is made, being those, the editors of which, with more or less fidelity, appear to have had immediate recourse to Bannatyne's Manuscript, in compiling their several publications :

Rams.—The Ever Green, being a Collection of Scots Poems, wrote by the ingenious before 1600. Published by Allan Ramsay. Edinburgh, 1724, 2 vols. 12mo.

Hailes.—Ancient Scottish Poems. Published from the MS. of George Bannatyne, MDLXVIII. [Edited by Sir David Dalrymple, Lord Hailes.] Edinburgh, 1770, 12mo.

 "Richt famous pepill ze sall vndirstand."
 [This Introductory Interlude, which commences with the "Proclamatioun maid in Cowpar of Fyffe," is not contained in the old edition of the Play, printed at Edinburgh by Robert Charteris, 1602, 4to, under the title of "Ane Satyre of the Three Estaitis." The nature of its local allusions, and not its indecency, may have occasioned its omission when the Play was subsequently exhibited at Edinburgh, in 1554. Mr. Chalmers, in his edition of Lyndsay's Works, has rejected this Interlude, but on insufficient grounds, as not being the composition of his author.]

After the Proclamation and first Interlude—is written, “ Heir begynnis Schir Fol. 168.

Dauid Lyndsay[is] Play maid in the Grenesyd besyd Edinburgh, quhilk I [haif] writtin bot schortly be Interludis, levand the grave mater therof, becaws the samyne abuse is weill reformit in Scotland, praysit be God; quhairthrow I omittit that principall mater, and writtin only Sertane mirry Interludis thairof, verry plesand, begynning at the first part of the play.”

In another part (fol. 177.) he writes, “ Heir followis certane mirry and sportsum Interludis, contenit in the play maid he Schir Dauid Lindsay of the Month, Knycht, in the Playfeild of Edinbur^t, to the mocking of abusonis usit in the cuntré be diverse sortis of Estait.” And, at the beginning of another Interlude, (fol. 196^b.) “ I tak heir bot certane schort pairtis out of the speiches, becaus of long process of the Play.”

“ Heir endis the schort interludis of S^r Dauid Lyndsayis Play, maid in the Grenesyd besyd Edinbur^t, in anno 155[4] 3eiris.” 210.

The Play is divided into Interludes, as printed in Pinkerton's Scottish Poems, reprinted from scarce editions, 1792, vol. ii. pp. 198, which also contains the additional passages from the edition of 1602, p. 199—259.

Extracts from, in Sibbald's Chronicle, 11. 257—348.—Also, in a separate volume, by Sibbald, Edin. 1802, 8vo, of which (it is said) 50 copies only were printed.—Lyndsay's Works, (from Charteris' edition, 1602,) by Geo. Chalmers, vol. i. 358—470, and vol. ii. 1—156. Allan Ramsay had transcribed these Interludes for publication, and his transcript (or a copy from it) afterwards passed into Garrick's possession.

On the reverse of the last leaf some anonymous verses are written in a later hand.

- (1.) “ Dantie and dortie to all mans eyes.”—4 lines. 210^b.
- (2.) “ Whyt as the egg, rid as the skarlet.”—4 lines.

16 stanzas of eight lines. [ffinis.] q. Mr. Robert Henrysone.

Rams. 1. 56.—Hailes, 78.—Sibb. 1. 115; and as a separate publication for the Members of the Bannatyne Club, 1824, 4to, by the late George Chalmers, Esq.—A fac-simile of the first stanza in the MS. is given on the leaf facing p. 84.

371. “Heir followis the Secound Prolloge or Proheme of the History of the Croniclis of Scotland; maid be Mr. Jobne Bellenden, Archedene of Murray. Saying to his buik, as eftir followis, verry notable and wirdy of commendatioun.”—“Thow marciall buke, pas to the nobill Prince.” In stanzas of eight lines; the MS. wanting fol. 368 and 369.

366^b.

This prolog ends on fol. 370^a, with this colophon—"ffinis. Compyld be Mr. Johne Bellenden, Archdene of Murray. Contentit in the volume of the Scottiss Croniculis; be him translaittit in our vulgar tung."

Sibb. 11. 62. Prefixed to the editions of Bellenden's translation of Boeccc's Chronicle.

"Followis the Table of the haill Buik."

Fol. 370^b.

This Table of the first lines of a considerable number of the poems, contained in the MS., fills seven pages, with some of the omissions supplied on the margin in the handwriting of Bishop Percy, who had been favoured with the loan of the Manuscript for a very considerable period, soon after it had been deposited in the Library of the Faculty of Advocates. A more exact Table of the first lines is given at page 91.

Fol. 374. contains the following poems, written in a hand about the end of the 17th century:—(1.) "A song in praise of Tobacco.—Much meat doeth gluttonye procure." 8 lines.—(2.) "Meditatioun on Tobacco.—Why sould we so much despyse." 4 stanzas of five lines.—(3.) "A Songe.—Iff thow canst not leive chast." 28 lines, with Latin terminations.

On the reverse of the leaf, Allan Ramsay has inserted his lines, "On the Ever-Green's being gathered out of this Manuscript, &c." "In seventeen hundred twenty-four," of which a facsimile is given on the opposite leaf.

Fol. 375, which is the last leaf in the volume, contains, in BANNATYNE'S hand, and probably of his own composition, the following lines,

372. "Off beginnyng and ending."

"God, that is maist glorius, was the mighty begynnar
Off all thingis that in hevin or erd hes thair being;
Quha was withowt begynnyng! He is the only helpar
And furrherrar of gude workis, to cum till gud ending!
Withowt counsale and avysement begin nocht ony thing,
Bot considder weill the end, and wey it discretly;
For happelly it preservis baith sawle and body."

372.* "The Wryttar to the Redar."—"Heir endis this buik, writtin in tyme of pest."

This concluding Address, by BANNATYNE, is printed at p. 18, and a facsimile is given on the leaf facing page 84. The reverse of the leaf contains the signatures of several of the Foulis's of Ravelston.

On the Ever Green's being gathered out of this Manuscript
By Allan Ramsay who had the Loan of it from the Honourable
Mr William Carmichael Advocate
Brother german to the Earl of Hymford.

In Seventeen hundred twenty four
Did Allan Ramsay keen-
-ly gather from this Book that store
which fills his Ever Green

Three fifty and six Towns neat free when it was collected

Let worthy Poets hope good fate,
Thro' time they'll be respected

Fashions of words & writ may change
and rob in part their fame
and make them to dull eyes look strange but sense is still the same and will beer bright to that Clear mind

that loves the antient Strains
Like good Carmichael Patron kind
to whom this Book pertains

For the first time in my life I have been
at the bottom of the sea
and I have seen
the things that I never thought I would see.

In the first part of the book I have written
of the things that I saw when I was
at the bottom of the sea
and I have written
of the things that I
thought I would see.
In the second part of the book I have written
of the things that I
saw when I was
at the bottom of the sea
and I have written
of the things that I
thought I would see.
In the third part of the book I have written
of the things that I
saw when I was
at the bottom of the sea
and I have written
of the things that I thought I would see.

“ Heir begynniss ane Ballat Buik, writtin in the zeir of God 1568.”

[IN addition to the preceding Contents, there is inserted at the beginning of BANNATYNE'S MANUSCRIPT, a fragment of 54 pages, with the above title. The poems contained in this fragment are all duplicate copies, with the exception of two or three at the end, which are evidently written at a later period. It is probable, therefore, that Bannatyne had proceeded to a certain length in transcribing the poems which he had collected, before he adopted the resolution of a systematic arrangement, as already described. The writing is less careful, and the names of the authors either omitted, or inserted afterwards.

For the greater facility in referring to the poems in this fragment, I shall continue the numbering from the end of the Fifth and last part of the larger Manuscript.—The pages on the margin are recently added.]

APPENDIX.

No. I.

NOTE, CONNECTED WITH AN ACCOUNT OF HIS OWN FAMILY, BY GEORGE BANNATYNE, whose Manuscript Collection of Scottish Poems furnished part of its materials to Ramsay's Evergreen, and a subsequent publication by Lord Hailes.

(Communicated by SIR WILLIAM MACLEOD BANNATYNE of Kaims.)

IN that account he states himself to be son of James Bannatyne of the Kirkton of Neutyle and Catherine Taillefer, and a younger brother of Thomas Bannatyne, who, by the death of his elder brother, Lawrence, under age, and without children, became the eldest of his sons, succeeded to him in his lands of Neutyle, and whom he states to have become a Senator of the College of Justice.

Agreeably to this statement we find, in the List of the Lords of Session published by Lord Hailes, from a Manuscript Abridgment of the Acts of Sederunt, which had belonged to Lord Pitmeddin, Mr. Thomas Ballenden's name entered as a Judge in 1577, in room of Auchinoul—and as deceased 26th November, 1591—the year in which George Bannatyne states Thomas to have died; and we find Andrew Wemyss, Myre-Cairne, named as a Judge on the decease of Newtyle—a circumstance which, with some other entries in it, shows that the writer of that Catalogue used the names of Ballenden and Bannatyne indifferently for each other; and that the Thomas Ballenden of Neutyle, who is entered as becoming a Judge in 1577, and dying in 1591, is no other than Thomas, the elder brother of George Bannatyne.

Respecting James, their father, whom George states as proprietor of the Kirkton of Neutyle, and as married to Catharine Taillefer, mother to Thomas, himself, and the other children mentioned in his account, there appear (in Mr. Thomson's Register of the Great Seal) two charters obtained by him, the one 1st June, 1548, Jacobo Bannatyne, burgensi de Edinburgh, "superioritatis terrarum de Kinclavin," Perthshire; the other, 23d March, 1558, "Jacobo Bannatyne, burgensi de Edinburgh, et Catharinae Taillefer suæ sponsæ terrarum de Little Balchonre, et Torwathwy," Fyfehire; which last, by mentioning Catharine Taillefer as his wife, shows this James Bannatyne, burgess of Edinburgh, to have been no other than James Bannatyne of the Kirkton of Neutyle, father to Thomas, Lord Neutyle, and to George himself.

There appear, also, in the Register of the Great Seal, 1527, a charter to John Bannatyne, designed Scribo signeti; and another, 1540, to James Bannatyne, also designed Scribo signeti, of certain tenements in Edinburgh, though it is not known whether either of these persons were connected with, or of the same family with, James Bannatyne of the Kirkton of Neutyle, and his sons George and Thomas.

However that may be, Thomas Bannatyne, Lord Neutyle, and brother of George, had a son carrying the same name with his grandfather, James Bannatyne of the Kirkton of Neutyle, burgess of Edinburgh, as appears from the Retour, No. 1073, vol. ii., of Thomson's Inquis. Retorn. Abbreviatio, dated 24th May, 1596, Perthshire; being that of "Magister Jacobus Bannatyne, Hæres Magistri Thomæ Bannatyne de Neutyle, unius Senatorum Collegii Justitiæ, patris, in Molendino de Migell, cum tèrris Molendinariis et as-trictis multuris."

Among the writings of the Bannatynes of Camys, who, as did also the Bannatynes of Corehouse, originally spelt their names Bannachtyne, there is a charter by James Bannatyne, designing himself son of Alexander Bannatyne, burgess of Edinburgh, conveying to Hector Bannatyne, Elder of Camys, in liferent, and Ninian, Younger of Camys, his son, in fee, the lands of Camys, and others in the Isle of Bute; as also those of Bannatyne Yards, in Ayrshire, as standing in his person by an apprising, apparently in trust for a particular purpose, appearing from other parts of the family writings; and by which they are destined, failing heirs of Ninian, successively to Angus, Ronald, and Charles, the brothers of Hector; and failing them, to James Bannatyne the granter—a circumstance which points him out, at the date of that charter, 31st July, 1577, to have been the nearest male relation of the family failing Hector, his son, and brothers; and makes it probable, that his father Alexander, designed burgess of Edinburgh, was himself an immediate son, or perhaps a grandson of the family; as, in a Crown-charter, 20th December, 1475, of their lands in Bute, Ayr, and Argyleshire, Robert, the grandfather of Hector, therein designed Robert de Bannatyne, appears to have had two brothers, Alexander the elder, and Walter the youngest, of the first of whom, Alexander, burgess of Edinburgh, if not an immediate son of the family, might be a descendant; and as among the witnesses to the first mentioned charter of James, the son of Alexander, burgess of Edinburgh, it is observable that we find, along with Alexander Bannatyne of Scarrol, proprietor of the lands of that name in Bute, and a well-known descendant of the Kames family, James Bannatyne of Kirkton, evidently the father of George and Thomas, Lord Neutyle, that circumstance, with the appearance of George having carried their armorial bearing, as delineated on the manuscript of his Poems, seemed to make it highly probable, that James Bannatyne of Kirkton, or his sons, were nearly connected with Alexander Bannatyne, also a burghess of Edinburgh, and his son James, and all of them equally descended from the Kames family.

It would seem, however, that there now appears some uncertainty as to what was the armorial bearings of George; either that the marking on the manuscript of his poems [See page 85] has been misunderstood, or that he himself had erroneously marked it as three mullets and a bend, being the armorial bearing of Kames; as, on the manuscript containing the account of his father's family, [See facsimile facing page 25] it is marked as a cross sable in a field argent between four mullets, the armorial bearing of the Bannatynes of Corehouse and Newhall; a circumstance which rather points at George and his brother Thomas being cadets of the Bannatynes of Corehouse; of which it can be clearly shown that the Auchinoul family, afterwards Lord Ballenden, though chusing to assume a different armorial bearing, and a different mode of spelling their name, were also descendants.

However this might be, as it has been seen that an intercourse, marking the probability of a connexion with each other, took place between James Bannatyne of Kirkcoun, the father of George and Thomas Lord Neutyle, and James, the son of Alexander Burgess of Edinburgh, and a near descendant of the Bannatynes of Camys or Kames; so this last would appear to have maintained a similar degree of intercourse with the Ballendens of Auchinoul—for a dispute which had arisen between Hector Bannatyne of Kames, and his brother Charles Bannatyne of Crasslagloan, being by a submission, 17th January 1592, referred to the above-mentioned James Bannatyne, therein designed writer, and Mr. Patrick Bannatyne, his brother, Mr. Thomas Ballenden, designed brother-german to Sir Lewis Ballenden of Auchinoul, is named as oversman; and in the decreet-arbitral which followed upon it, 8th February 1592, we find among the witnesses Mr. Adam Ballenden, also brother to Sir Lewis.

It may be further observed, that while as both the families of Camys and Corehouse originally spelled their name Ban, or Benachtyne, and afterwards Bannatyne; in the first of which forms (as to the family of Kames) it frequently occurs in their early writings, and so (as to that of Corehouse) it appears in the Rolls of David the Second [Thomson's Reg. Magni Sig. p. 28, art. 47.]; both wore mullets in their arms, and both carried the same crest and motto; circumstances which leave no doubt as to their being of the same descent.

The Camys or Kames family derive their descent from Gilbert, the son of Gilbert, who, under the designation of Gilbertus filius Gilberti, obtained a charter of part of the family lands in the island of Bute, from Walter, Steward of Scotland, witnessed by Robertus Illustrissimus Rex Scotiæ; Edwardus, Dominus Gallovidiæ, frater ejus, and several of the most distinguished barons of that period; and whose son, John, who also obtained a charter from him of several other parts of the family lands, appears from entries in the Chamberlain Rolls, and other evidence, to have been chamberlain of Bute under the Steward.

They had many branches in Bute and its neighbourhood, including the Bannatynes of Kelly in Renfrew and Ayrshires, and the Ballantines, now of Castlehill, in the latter.

They had been always considered as a head family; and their title to be so was strongly pointed out by the circumstance, that while all the Bannatynes of Bute carried the Gaelic patronymic of M. Amlyne, derived from an older ancestor than either of the Gilberts, the family of Kames, as their head, carried that of M. Amlyne Mher; circumstances which, joined to the others already noticed, and particularly of their both having originally borne the name of Bannachtyne, evidently one of Gaelic origin, much more likely to be assumed by a family in Bute, where that language prevailed, than by one in Lanarkshire, entitle its present representative to hold that the Kames family was the general root of the name, and that of Corhouse one of its branches, though certainly not the oldest of them.

ADDITIONAL NOTICES RESPECTING GEORGE BANNATYNE AND HIS CONNEXIONS.

(Communicated by JOHN RIDDELL, Esq. ADVOCATE.)

CONTRACTS, dated Edinburgh, 4th April, 1571, between Sir John Bellenden of Auchinoul, knight, and Jonet Leyton, his spouse, on one part, and Henry Nisbet, burghess of Edinburgh, and Janet Bannatyne, his spouse, on the other part, by which, for the sum of 500 merks, paid by Henry Nisbet and Janet Bannatyne, the latter agree to infest the former in an annual rent of 50 merks out of the lands of Nether Carlourie, Linlithgowshire, under reversions. Witnesses, Mr. Thomas Bannatyne, GEORGE and Mr. James Bannatynes, sons to James Bannatyne, burghess of Edinburgh, and James Bannatyne, younger, his servand.— [Bonds and Obligations, vol. xi.]

James Bannatyn, WRITER, burghes of Edinburgh, GEORGE and Mr. James Bannatynes, his sones, and James Bannatyne, servand to the said James, mentioned in a deed dated 1569.— [Bonds and Obligations, vol. xi.]

The above Henry Nisbet was undoubtedly the ancestor of the knightly family of Nisbet of Dean, near Edinburgh, his elder representatives, and of their cadets, the Nisbets of Craigin-tinnie and Dirleton. Sir John Nisbet of Dirleton, Lord Advocate to Charles the Second, is well known. These facts can be proved by legal evidence, and are mentioned by Nisbet in his Heraldry, vol. i. p. 315, new edition.

Nisbet, or rather the author of Historical and Critical Remarks on Ragman Roll, observes, “Nisbet of Dean is now the best family of the name,” [ib. vol. ii. Hist. and Criti- cal Remarks, p. 42] ; and that of the Nisbets of Dalzell, of the ancient family of the Nisbets of that ilk, “ flowed the Nisbets of Dean, being descended of Adam Nisbet, a son of the Barons of Dalzell, who came to Edinburgh a merchant in King James the Fourth’s time, as Sir Patrick Nisbet of Dean, Bar^t, informed the author of these remarks.”—[Ib. p. 48.] Adam was the father of Henry above mentioned.

Nisbet, author of the Heraldry, again says, [article, Exterior Ornaments, vol. ii. p. 32, new edit.] “ that the family of Dean is the only family of the name in Scotland that has right, by consent, to represent the old original family of the name of Nisbet ; since the only lineal male representer, the author of this System, is like to go soon off the world, being an old man, and without issue, male or female. On which account he had a right,” he adds, “ to the ancient supporters of Nisbets of that ilk, which he had, indeed, previously borne by authority.” It is to be observed, that Nisbet, author of the Heraldry, was the undoubted chief of the name.

ANE Lettir, maid with awife and consent of the Lordis of our Soverane Lordis Secret Counfall, makand, constituand and ordinand his lovittis fervitouris JAMES BANNATYNE, of the Kirktoon of Newtyle, Tabular of the College of Justice, and Maister Thomas Bannatyne, his sone and apperand air, and the langest levar of thame twa, ather of thame broukand eftir utheris as thai ar ordanit be thir lettiris, Tabularis of his Hienes Senate and College of Justice, of all and fundrie sammondis to be callit thairin, be ordour of tabill, for all the dayis of thair lyffis, &c. &c. POEMS BY GEORGE BANNATYNE.

FROM HIS MANUSCRIPT, M.D.LXVIII.

(I.)

As Phebus bricht in fpeir merediane,
 E of the warld, and lamp etheriall,
 Passis the licht that cleipit is Dyane,
 Quhen scho is lucent, round as ony ball,
 And Lucifair all vther sternis small;
 My Lady fo in bewty dois abound
 Aboif all vthir ladeis on the ground.

5

Hir hair displayit as the goldin wyre

Aboif hir heid, with bemys radiant,
 Is lyk ane bus that birnys in the fyre 10
 With flammys reid but fumys elevant ;
 War nocht scho is fum thing too variant,
 I mycht of reffone fay, that dame Nature
 Formit nevir in erd fo fair a creature.

My hairt, that nevir wes thirlit vnto wicht, 15
 In deidly dwalmys fowpit is for evir,
 For luv of hir that is my Lady bricht ;
 Quhois plesant hals is quhytter tha the evir,
 Or snaw but spot that fallis in the revir ;
 The fragrant balme of odour confortatyve 20
 May nocht for sweitnefs with hir lippis strive.

Thow drery goft, that dwynnys in difpair,
 Pafs with this bill vnto my Lady fweit,
 And, in to prefens of hir vifage fair,
 Vpon thy kneis thow fall befoir hir feit, 25
 Askand hir mercy, with thy cheikis weit,
 To confort me of my woundis finert,
 Quhome dart of luv hes perfit throw the hert.

Sen Athropos my fatell threid hes worne,
 In plenyng foir, and rewthfull womenting, 30
 And that asperans is non vnto the morne,
 Of my pure hairt dyand in lang wyfing,
 Thow bury my corps but ony tareing ;
 For Acteon wes flanit at the well,
 Be wreth of Dyane, with his avin houndis fell. 35

O thunderane boir, in thy moft awfull rege,
 Quhy will thow nocht me with thy tukkis ryve ?
 Sen no thing may my grevous paine affuage
 Bot scho, quhilk is the revar of my lyve,
 With fichis foir, and cairis pungetyve ; 40

Quhairthrow my blude refoluit is in teiris,
And 3it no rewth in to hir hairt appeiris.

God gife it wer my fatell aventure
To fecht aganis hir fayis to the deid,
With speir and fcheild, and all that I might fure, 45
To pruve hir flour and well of womanheid !
Howbeit it wer nocht to my lyfe remeid ;
It wald me fuffyiis, fen that fcho hes no maik,
Till end my lyfe in battell for hir faik.

3it I befeik hir for the grit delyte 50
That femyt in hir bewty naturall,
With rewthfull prefens of her vifage quhyt,
Scho wald decoir my feiftis funerall !
That luvaris mycht espy, in generall,
Gif that hir ene, for weping, mycht indure 55
To luke vpon my rewthfull fepulture.

FINIS, QUOTH BANNATYNE.

(II.)

No woundir is althocht my hairt be thrall
To 3ow, I wifs, the flour of courtefy,
For quhy? 3our name and fame fo fpreidis our all
That 3e ar held to be the A per fe
In vyrte, meiknefs, trewth, and equitie; 5
And eik to this, 3our proper perfoun fair
Is fo weill maid in all maner degré,
That non to me falbe fo fingulare.

Heirfoir I will rycht humly 3ow imploir
To lat fum fremys of grace on me diftil ; 10
For non bot 3e my gladnes may reftoir, Becaus both lyfe and deth lvis in 3our will ;
For, as 3e lif, 3e may me faif or fpill
With 3our one wurd, fo ftand I in 3our cure ;

- Sen I thairfoir am subject 3ow vntill,
Latt me nocht fuerf 3our faythfull feruiture. 15
- For my grene 3owth is lyk the withering hay,
So foir I am ourfett with fichingis feir ;
My rofy lippis are woxin pail and blay,
Thruch only thocht of 3ow, my Lady deir ; 20
And thair is non may be my medfoneir,
Bot 3our favour, quhilk gif I do obteine,
I fall revert, as dois the reid rofeir,
Frefcheft of hew in fomer fefoun grene.
- And fen I am fo trublit in my thocht, 25
Lat nocht deley be ane occafion
To place difpair quhair howp and truft hes wrocht ;
Bot grant with fpeid fum confolatioun,
That pety having dominatioun
Within 3our breift, I may fum grace purchefs 30
Of my murnyng and lamentatioun,
Qubilkis I fuftene for 3ow, my fair Maiftrefs.
- No thing of rycht I ask, my Lady fair,
Bot of fré will and mercy me to faif ;
3our will is 3our awin, as reffoun wald it ware, 35
Thairfoir of grace, and nocht of rycht, I craif
Of 3ow mercy, as 3e wald mercy haif
Off God our Lord, quhois mercyis infeneit
Gois befoir all his werkis, we may perfaif,
To thame quhois handis with mercy ar repleit. 40
- And gif that I be fund to 3ow vntrew,
Wilfull, heichty, or eik in ony wayis
Jeloufs, vnkynd, or chengeing for ane new ;
A vaine wantour, or rebelling to your fervyis,
As traitouris fals hes bene befoir oft fyis, 45
Quhois vntrew hairtis garris trew folkis leif in wo ;

Than for my gilt no torment culd fuffyis,
Bot I prayfe God it standis nocht with me fo.

Now to conclude with wordis compendious :
Wald God my tong wald to my will refpond, 50
And eik my fpeich wer fo facundious,
That I wer full of rethore termys jocond !
Than fuld my lufe at moir lenth be expond,
Than my cunnyng can to 3ow heir declair ;
For this my ftyle inornetly compond, 55
Efchamys my pen 3our eiris to truble mair.

Nocht ellis thairfoir I wryt to 3ow, my fweit,
Bot with meik hairt, and quaking pen and hand,
Profratis my feruice law doun at 3our feit,
Bot nycht and day quhill I may gang or ftand ; 60
Praying the Lord, of pety excelland,
To plant in 3ow ane petifull hairt and mynd,
Conducting 3ow to joy everlaftand,
Both now and ay, and fo I mak ane end.

Go to my deir with hummill reuerence, 65
Thow bony bill, both rude and imperfyte,
Go nocht will forgit flattery to hir prefence,
As is of falset the cuftome vfe and ryte ;
Caufs me nocht BAN that evir I thé indyte,
NA TYNE my travell, turnyng all in vane ; 70
Bot with ane faithfull hairt, in werd and wryte,
Declair my mynd, and bring me joy agane.

*My name quha lif to knaw, lat him tak tent
Vnto this littill verfe nixt prefedent.*
